

JIMIL DIGASWALA

Web- Developer

As a student at VIT Chennai, I have been fortunate enough to pursue my passion for computer science and coding. Throughout my academic journey, I have consistently demonstrated a keen interest in software development, programming languages, and algorithms. My coursework has included a range of challenging projects and assignments, which have allowed me to hone my technical skills and build a solid foundation in computer science. I am particularly passionate about coding, and have spent countless hours honing my skills through online coding platforms and personal projects. I am excited about the prospect of utilizing my technical expertise to make a meaningful contribution to the world of computer science.
